SPECIAL TOPICS IN PSYCHOEDUCATIONAL ASSESSMENT:
A CASE STUDY APPROACH

ST08

Joan Axelrod, M.Ed, instructor

School psychologists, child psychologists, and pediatric neuropsychologists who conduct psychoeducational assessments will study key topics in the area and discuss diagnostic assessment data. The seminar series will provide a venue to analyze actual case material, including developmental history; cognitive, neuropsychological, and educational test results; observational data; and response-to-intervention data. Some exemplar cases will be provided, but each participant will be expected to bring in case material they would like to discuss. There will be five monthly meetings, with each meeting including a review of the special topic followed by case study presentation and discussions. Topics to be covered will include:

- *Assessment of executive function and educational implications
*Assessment of students with possible spectrum disorders
*What is this thing called processing speed?
*Assessment of memory and its classroom implications

12/13/07, 1/10/08, 2/14/08, 3/13/08, 4/10/08, 4:00 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.

Attendance at all five sessions is required.
